ALZHEIMER'S NEWS

The hope for future drugs

Currently, there are five FDA-approved Alzheimer's drugs that treat the symptoms of Alzheimer's — temporarily helping memory and thinking problems in about half of the people who take them. But these medications do not treat the underlying causes of Alzheimer's. In contrast, many of the new drugs in development aim to modify the disease process itself, by impacting one or more of the many wide-ranging brain changes that Alzheimer's causes. These changes offer potential "targets" for new drugs to stop or slow the progress of the disease. Many researchers believe successful treatment will eventually involve a "cocktail" of medications aimed at several targets, similar to current state-of-the-art treatments for many cancers and AIDS. Sign up for our weekly e-news and stay up-to-date on the latest advances in Alzheimer's treatments, care and research. (seek more info at www.alz.org)

Over the last 30 years, researchers have made remarkable progress in understanding healthy brain function and what goes wrong in Alzheimer's disease. The following are examples of promising targets for next-generation drug therapies under investigation in current research studies:

- Current drug in research that targets beta-amyloid: Solanezumab Solanezumab is a monoclonal antibody designed to lower the level of beta-amyloid in the brain. These antibodies bind to beta-amyloid, preventing the formation of plaques; solanezumab may also help carry excess beta-amyloid away from the brain. Several studies of this drug are under way with the goal determining if solanezumab improves participants' cognition (thinking and memory) and functioning. Some participants will undergo a brain scan called positron emission tomography (PET) to determine levels of beta-amyloid in the brain. (Drug is still in research; not available to the public.)

Ceca Foundation Celebrating Caregivers

About Ceca

Ceca Foundation was established in 2013 to celebrate caregiver excellence. Ceca's mission is to promote high patient satisfaction by recognizing and rewarding outstanding caregivers. Ceca's name is derived from "celebrating caregivers", and is pronounced see'-ka. Ceca Foundation believes that positive caregiver attitudes and teamwork ultimately translate into a positive patient experience. To that end, we have developed and support a peer-to-peer Caregiver Recognition Program for participating healthcare institutions ("Ceca Healthcare Partners"), such as hospitals, nursing homes, rehabilitation centers, group homes and other institutional caregiving providers. Our program provides the funding, tools and best practice training to enable individual caregivers to openly recognize their fellow caregivers by nominating them for the Ceca Award. Based on these nominations, a panel of judges select the Ceca Award winners. Winners are chosen from those caregivers receiving nominations, who best exhibit core values of empathy, humor, integrity, professionalism and teamwork. Awards are made throughout the year, either monthly or quarterly based on the size of the facility.

Ceca's program is based on the power of recognition. We believe that all workers have a fundamental need for appreciation and a sense of belonging. We believe that peer-to-peer recognition is a powerful motivator, and one of the best ways to honor co-workers and encourage engagement. We believe that engaged workers with positive attitudes perform at higher levels, leading to improved patient care and better patient experience.

Ceca's Recognition and Rewards Program centers on a contest designed to recognize, celebrate and reward caregivers who have been nominated by co-workers for exceptional patient care. Ceca's open online peer-to-peer recognition system makes frequent, meaningful recognition easy for co-workers. Every day, our Healthcare Partners' staff, patients and families recognize the contributions of co-workers workers by making nominations through a secure website. A caregiver who is moved to recognize a fellow co-worker logs-on to the system and clicks on a button to make a nomination. This automatically nominates recipient for the Ceca Award (see below). Nominations are also posted on the Healthcare Partner's "Team Wall" for everyone to see.

The Ceca Award

Nominations are tracked by the system, and evaluated by a panel of judges made up of Ceca, our Healthcare Partner representatives, and patients and their families. At the end of the nomination period, this panel of judges reviews the posts and chooses that period's Ceca Award winner who best exemplifies qualities of empathy, humor, integrity, professionalism and teamwork in treating patient residents. Aside from the genuine respect and positive recognition from peers and patients, monthly and quarterly winners additionally receive a $250 prize.

At year-end, staff, patients and families nominate an Annual Ceca Award winner. The Annual Award winner is chosen from the group of monthly or quarterly award winners. The Best Nominator is chosen by the panel of judges for making thoughtful, fun and positive nominations throughout the year. The annual winner of the Ceca Award also receives a $1,000 prize, and the Annual Best Nominator receives a $500 prize. While the financial rewards are designed to be meaningful, the Ceca Award is fundamentally about the priceless recognition given by fellow staff members. Together with patients and their families, Ceca seeks to celebrate and thank caregivers for their outstanding work.

Stoddard Baptist Global Care @ WCAS is a 259 bed nursing home located in the Northeast section of the District of Columbia (Washington, DC). The Center employs approximately 431 team members and provides both long-term care and short-term rehabilitation services. The facility primarily serves an income-disadvantaged population, and is recognized for outstanding nursing care. Together with Stoddard Baptist, an affiliate, SBGS is testing a staff group incentive program to increase caregiver participation in Ceca's recognition and rewards program. Launched in June 2015.
